Carm was my aunt and I was 10 in 1979 when my grandfather, Russ Hoffman, passed away. The biggest takeaway from the first significant familial loss of my life was how kind and insightful she was to me then. I she asked me if I thought I knew him well. I said yes, and she told me to hold tightly to those memories because as years go by they will start to fade away if you don't think about them often. I remember she was very humble, had a great sense of humor and loved to laugh. Always brought a loving, steady presence into the family she married into, whose most common thread seemed to be critical analysis of one another. She was a real gem of a human being.

My mother was a hard working woman, she always put me and my brother Brian first. It didn't matter what we had or didn't have, she always made sure we had what we needed. You know I remember a time when me and Brian got in trouble, she had to stand on a two foot wall in front of our house to look us in the eye to give us the third degree. She was a short woman 5'2" tall with shoes on. Then it wasn't funny, but as I do today it is pretty comical. I miss you mom, you left us to soon. Love you mom.

I met "Carmmie" at the Toast years ago when I worked there.We were both going through some rough times,but no matter what,Carmmie had a wonderful sense of humor and a precious loving heart! She was the sister I never had and I will always cherish her memory...
