“ I met Ron 25 years ago when I was just 15 years old. At the time, he was just one of my best friends' dad. I had no clue a few years later, he would become my step-father. For the past year or so up until the coronavirus, I spent almost everyday with him. I would go check on him everyday on my lunch breaks and take out his beloved Sasha to potty. He would always notice if I was wearing a new shirt, shoes, etc. When I would walk in the door he would say “you got on a new pretty blouse, you look nice.” Around the time that I would go over there, my mom would be calling to check on him and when she asked him what he was doing, he would say “having lunch with a beautiful and sweet lady.” People don't realize just little things like that can brighten your day. He would always ask how things were going at the office. He was always concerned about others. In fact, anytime any of us had a trip planned out of town and he knew about it, he would always be the first one to call to check on our progress and to make sure we arrived safely. Ron watched my children grow up, taught my son how to mow a lawn, and always asked how they were coming along with school and work. If I had to describe Ron in one word it would be concerning. He was always concerned about others. He will truly be missed.

“ Our condolences to the family. Ron and I graduated high school together. We knew each other all through school, from the earliest grades through our Senior year. I can see him winding up to pitch that baseball now! Go, Ron! He will be missed and remembered well.

Thoughts and prayers for all.
