“ I am sorry to hear of the death of such brilliant and talented man who I knew as an adolescent and youth. We played many role-playing games and war games in a small high school and college age group in Indiana many years ago. I have only learned of his passing recently. My condolences to the surviving family and friends.

“ I am so sorry for your loss. I've been thinking back to all the time our little group spent together playing games and watching movies in high school, it brings a smile to my face thinking of those good times. Of course after I moved away from Indiana we didn't have much contact, but Jeff and I did meet up again a few years ago when we both worked for Honeywell. I am glad we had a chance to spend a short while catching-up. Jeff was a good man, and he will be missed.

“Mr. Singer, I am so sorry for your loss. Jeff was one of our best optical engineers at Guide. He was very quite around me until one day we started talking about cars. Even though our age difference and his quiet, reserve nature were barriers before, we found that our common love of cars was enough to become casual friends from then on. I too was very impressed with his bravery facing his illness over the last couple of years. He made his situation easier for us all.

“I only got to know Jeff in the last couple of years, and he was struggling with illness through most of that time. I admire his positive attitude and desire to continue working and contributing even in the midst of his difficult situation. I regret that I did not have more time to get to know him better.

“ We only knew Jeff through his dad and step-mom, but recognized how courageous he was with his illness. We pray that God provides comfort and strength, but also a daily picture of the unending joy that Jeff now experiences. Peace and love to the family as you say your goodbyes. We unfortunately are out of town and unable to attend the service. Just know that our thoughts, prayers and love are with you. Gracie & John Suko

“ Distance and circumstance prevented us from much contact with Jeff but narrative from his father, David, spoke volumes as to his zest for travel, photography, the outdoors, and in general his zest for life. Now he is in a better place free from pain and suffering. Hopefully the void left by his passing will be filled in the hearts of those who knew and loved him by the many great memories that he left.

“ Jeff was a quiet and considerate young man with many gifts and talents. I knew him initially through his father, a co-worker in the Product Design group at Guide, who later became my boss and one of my best friends. I got to know Jeff better when he came to work at Guide, and especially when I bowled on his bowling team in the Guide Engineering League. I enjoyed those times I shared with him. He will be missed by all of us, especially by his loving family, who are in our thoughts and prayers.
