“I have fond memories of hanging out with John at his camper and him putting up with my learning how to waterski behind his boat. He was always very easy to talk to no matter what was on your mind.

When we lose someone with John's memory we lose so much more than a kind human being we lose all that knowledge he had stored up. He knew so much about how Anderson used to be and about old cars and how to fix things. I always feel sad for that loss also. Lillian Anker
