“ I will never forget listening to you and Shayla make plans for your kids to grow up together or hearing that snort when you would laugh in the back seat on the way to a TKO. I remember seeing those braces shining in the sun and your face red with laughter. My heart is broken for your family. Love you sweet girl

“ I got to work with Lauren during my nursing contract last year. When our eyes met we were instantly nurse buddies. I'd see your name on the sheet before the shift started and 100 pounds of weight would leave my shoulders. It was my first contract, first time working at a hospital without orientation, first time venturing out of my bubble and you were my safety blanket. You never sighed when I needed help or asked the same question for the thousandth time. It was like we knew each other for years. I'm glad I could be there for you in return during all the hard times. You had such a sweet and soft spirit. You're truly missed

“ I enjoyed working with Lauren through her pregnancy and watching her excited anticipation of the life before her. I referred her to a neighbor as a photographer and they were overjoyed. She took beautiful photos capturing the most precious times for other families. So sorry to see her daughter won't get to see the world thru her moms camera lens. We are sad that she is not here with us or for her daughter.

“ We worked together for years at Riverview. We all worked with you in med-surg there while you were a nursing student. Then as you became a bride, an RN, and then a mother. You were one of the favorites, respected and cared for by everyone. Ryan wrote a beautiful tribute to you. I cried for the first time reading it, because I remembered how you used to be. Last Thursday at work, I thought I could feel your presence...and that you were happy again. But another part of me looked at the hallways and patient rooms you'd walked 1,000s of times and thought, "You should be here!" Selfish maybe, but natural when someone so young and who had held so much promise, is suddenly gone. Hugs and farewell, LoLo. ~ Melanie Dixon
