“ Lyndsey, I will never forget when you, your mom, and Rickard went with my mom, Andrew, and me to Florida on spring break my senior year. From the beaches to Disney Village, we never stopped cracking up. You were with me down there when I got my first tattoo, and you know how many I have now :).But, the best times spent were the down times. Those were the times when we walked around my grandparents' quiet Florida neighborhood, barefoot in the dark with the dim lights, just talking and laughing. We did that every night. Ha, we wouldn't even let the guys come with us. I know each of us knew how special of a friend one was to the other, and it was just always implied. Miss you Lyndsey. My heart aches, but I am happy that you aren't hurting anymore. Love you.

“ I'm going to miss you so much, you've always been a great friend, always there, even when you had your own crisis going on you would drop it all, just to talk me off that ledge. You did it many many times, I am forever grateful! I love you my dear friend, I'm thankful I had the privilege to call you my close friend! God Speed, I'll see you when I get there!!

“ Lyndsey Marie, I loved you so much, you were so smart, loving, caring and would do so much for anyone. Heaven has another angel, but we lost a beautiful soul down here. I cannot believe you are gone, but God must have plans for you with Him. Until we meet again, tell Bryan and Mom and Dad I love them.. 💕

She was so funny. I loved all the times we would just look at each other and laugh just because we knew what each other was thinking. I miss her.
