“ Dear Hanlon clan,

I am sorry I could only attend the funeral today and didn't get a chance to visit with you all. However, I wanted you to know how beloved Aunt Jo was to all the Tom Wiley family. Jo always had that twinkle in her eye - even to the end, and it was special to see it and enjoy her enjoyment of family and her life. We all think of her at Easter in particular, which is very fitting for such a prayerful woman.

I also thought the Readings chosen for her funeral today were perfect! I think they were tied directly to her beliefs and I am confident she is back with not only her Heavenly Father but her family as well. In addition, the Priest clearly knew Jo and beautifully commemorated her memory and the lessons of her life.

On a side note, I can't omit my favorite story of Jo and my Dad. Everything I said above about Jo is true, but she was a spunky one as well! How could she not be with all those boys and no Mother? Anyway, as she became the Mother to her childhood household, she had to hold the fort in the kitchen. When my Dad tried to steal meat off the stove before diner was served in their early teens, she threatened him with the fork in her hand. They were neither one scared of much nor apt to give in. He reached again, she kept her word...apparently stabbing him right in the forearm. Sounds like a legendary story until you saw either of them tell it by the look in their eye... Yes, she always had the twinkle, but she also held her own. I would imagine each of her children and grandchildren would no doubt agree.

May God bless her soul. May she be reunited with all her siblings in Heaven. She was loved and she will be missed!
