“ My grandma taught me so much. I remember all the family dinners on Sundays. She taught me how to make homemade mashed potatoes, and reminding me that I must put a big slab of butter and some salt and pepper on top. She taught me how to read the bible, which was probably the first book I learned to read. She taught me how to set the table for dinner and then we would go for a walk around the block. I remember her only ever wearing a dress and hose, and she must have always had her apron on. I also remember going to the beauty shop and watching her get her perms. My grandma was the best anyone could ever have. I will miss her every single day. May you rest in peace with grandpa and dear aunt Nancy. We will all be together again someday. Until then much hugs and kisses to my wonderful grandma. I love you!!

“ I grew up 1/2 block from the Sargent's on Poplar St. I have very dear memories of Sarg and Maudie. They were such nice people and always so kind to us kids. She always spoke of her family with such love. I loved the way she laughed! She had a long wonderful ride in this world. She was a truly beautiful women. My thoughts and prayers are with you.
