“Maverine was the most positive person we've ever met. She always shared a good word, and always spoke of the "five generations" of her family, pointing out their picture out in her room. Maverine would say, "It's so good to know that when your in this season of life, you have a place to go where you can get three good meals a day..." She would always reflect on her husband's passing and their last night together. Maverine would speak of the Word, and show us her mother's devotional book. She would ask us to get it down from the shelf and share something about it with us. Most memorable was that at some point in the midst of her faith filled conversation, she would spontaneously break out into singing hymns. Maverine was an incredible and beautiful lady and an inspiration to us. "What a day that will be, when my Jesus I will see. When I look into his face, and see the fullness of his grace. When He takes me by the hand, and leads me to the promised land...what a day, glorious day that will be." Our deepest sympathy to her family, especially Joe and Joyce who we think very highly of. Fondly,
