“ As were all children at the family reunions, I was seated at the "kids" table for the meal and like all the others was impatient to grow up in order to be allowed eventually to sit at the "grown-up" table. But when it came time for the "not-really reluctant" inevitable jam session, kids and adults both eagerly awaited what they knew was going to be a memorable performance by Uncle Norman and his pals. When the performance started, all of the "kids" then knew that they were being treated just like the "grown-ups" and with a front-row seat to boot!

“ Oh how I loved to banter with you, Stormy!!! And the Navy taught well about exact order of neatness. One of my favorite ways to tease you was after you went to work,( on Hamilton Place), I would move all your perfectly placed items at your favorite table. You were my dad for 40 years and I loved every minute of it..... Almost. Would trade a minute of it for anything. I love ya! #Leonardstrong

“ My most enduring memories of my Uncle Norman were the many times during family reunions when he would "reluctantly" whip out his banjo and just launch into some rip-roarin' bluegrass classics. And then he would just give me a big grin, like "How's that, nephew?"

Rest in peace, dear Uncle

You will be missed and remembered.

“ Papaw I will Never forget me always thinking you had put grease in your hair to slick it back and it was just water. And how you used to call me Squirrel. I will always be your Squirrel. I love you Papaw.
