“ My aunt Patty would come over and we would play cards like skip-Bo for hours. This is a pic of when I came home back in 2011. I had my son with me and Patty came over to see him. After he fell asleep, mom, Patty, and I stayed up to play into the night. It was one of our favorite pastimes to do together. I don't play with anyone else besides family and I miss it greatly. Patty was either lucky or she was grandmother and cheated at it 😂

“ My aunt Patty always told me that I might not always like what my family does but I will always love them. She was one of the strongest peoples I knew. I miss talking to and telling her about my day and learning about hers. She taught me so much despite the distance my life has taken me away from family. She was my rock that kept me stable, the woman that told me to breathe and relax, and the light that made smile and laugh when all I saw was darkness. I will forever miss her.
