“ Rick was one of the most influential figures in my life, guiding me in the electrical industry helping me learn the trade to the point where I was able to pass my masters test and become an official licensed master electrician. He was always willing to help me learn making the experience fun and laughable at the same time. He was never bashful about chewing your rearend about things you did wrong, but in a good old-school caring type of way. I will miss Rick greatly and I know he is in the kingdom free from all the worldly pains. God speed Rick, thank you from a poor blue-collar kid from Madison county.... Thank you for never doubting me or giving up, Ill forever hold memories of you dear to my heart!
