“ This Lady was such a kind person. For years, when I would return home from school, I would go to the drug store and spend some time updating on things. It was always one of those little things that made small town life so very good. She was a "good" in the bigger picture of things. And after all, in life, is it not the good memories that we leave behind that are important. I believe so. At least for me, she will always be a good memory. She was one that I am thankful for having known and shared things with.
