“ It’s with a heavy heart to say goodbye. You were so much more than an uncle, you were a mentor.

Whenever life threw curveballs — new jobs, job losses, endless interviews, you were always just a phone call away. You would check in every week, offering guidance, encouragement, and a little bit of humor when I needed it most. You taught me to work hard but play even harder.

You introduced me to new foods long before I knew what “foodie” even meant — and you’re absolutely the reason I became the steakhouse snob I am today.

I’ll never forget picking up your son at the airport, blasting oldies in the car, and watching you invent ridiculous dance moves. I remember being embarrassed by the stares, until you said, “Who cares?” and kept dancing. That moment taught me to stop worrying about what people think and just follow the beat of my own drum.

To hear one of your daughters mention, “my dad thinks very highly of you,” will always be one of the most rewarding compliments. You will be missed, Uncle Steve. ❤️

“ My Uncle Steve

The first thing I can say about my Uncle is, " Don't apologize for who you are". I rode 3 wheelers and 4 wheelers with no helmet, no pads, and when I'd wreck, he'd say try again, you'll get it. And I did. There's a lot of family history here and my memories of my uncle are great! Fun times, cool rides, and some of my best memories. As I got older I started to understand that we had a whole lot in common. And the last times we spent together brung joy to my heart because I knew I wasn't alone. Lol. If you know then you know.

“ I will forever miss your infectious laugh, and that grin that you would give, Indicating a little secret between us. I will forever be envious of your quick wit and dry sense of humor. You were always just a phone call away and you would random call to check in on your baby sister. I was blessed to have you has my brother the one who taught me how to put a spiral on a football:) I love you, Steve and miss you !

“ Steve was a wonderful man to work for, a friend, and always doing his best for his family. Steve hired our firm, ASG, to take a new product in the HVAC Industry and market it the to distribution/contractor marketplace. With his perseverance and a strong belief in the Reflectix product he truly became the “King” of the market!!
