“ My mom,dad,sister,and I will miss Tyler and Jessie very much. They were neighbors like no others. They were always ready with a kind heart, a listening ear, or a helping hand as they welcomed each of us with their warm Southern hospitality. My mom still speaks of the time when her mom died and Jessie took our clothes home and ironed them for us. When my dad had his stroke, he went to Jessie and Tyler's and asked them to help find me as he needed help. Jessie called me at work, and Tyler stayed with my dad until I arrived. These are just two of a multitude of ways that these two precious people showed their love to us. We loved them, and we will miss them. Yet,I know when I step into heaven one day, I shall see Jesus and with Him, I shall be blessed to be welcomed once again by Tyler and Jessie and that same wonderful Southern hospitality....
