Tribute Wall

“ This tribute is specifically for "Chaddie"...as his beloved grandmother referred to him, back in the day, but also a tribute for all those that dearly loved her. And if you knew Virginia, you loved her. Mrs. Scott, as I called her, started out as our neighbor, and became a friend that made such an impact upon our lives. I probably was about 13 years old, 37 years ago, when I first met her. My father, Paul Mills, was her handy man and our family push mowed her cute yard. My mother babysat for you, when you were about 3, cute as a button. We were just a blue collar hard working family, common folk, and this gifted, well read, artist...Virginia treated us like gold. She was kind to us, loving, respectful, and she wasn't a person that just talked the talk, she walked the walk. She loved her grandchildren so very much. My sister and I would just envy Annette's own playhouse out in the backyard, and Chaddie was like an angel to his grandmother. If I remember correctly, she took care of you as much as she could, and alot once she retired. And everytime I would see you with her, she glowed. She treated life as a painting, she colored the world, and complimented every detail. She was so warm, so real, so intelligent, and yet down to earth. Her extreme ability to love flowed over to the animal worldthey even gravitated to her and her compassion and devotion to those she loved, was also, evident in the way that she took care of her own aging mother right in her own home. I still have some gifts, that she gave to me, and I cherish them dearly, and everytime I look at them I think of Virginia...Mrs. Scott! She always made me feel special. I only have wonderful memories of her, because that was what she was, wonderful. A very classy, genuinely caring, loving lady, that made a big impression on my life. I last talked to her one year ago, after she received my parent's 50th wedding Anniversary card. And in that conversation, I was able to convey to her that she meant so much to me, and still...her love and warmth flowed freely out of her in that conversation, talking alot about you, Chad. She was prescious and rare here on earth, and without a doubt, today she walks on streets of Gold with the loved ones she has missed for so long, with animals at her feet and a smile on her face! God bless you and your family, and know that her memory lives within us everyday, and we will see her again, where she will embrace us all, once again. We were all so blessed to just know her and have our lives touched by her, we thank God for that!...and YOU...were her pride and joy! My heart goes out to, and you will be in my prayers, Keep her love alive, that would be the greatest honor of all to her. Sincerely, Patty daughter of Paul and Grace Mills, Chesterfield, IN p.s. please feel free to email me anytime, as I was able to go with my aging mother to the graveside services, and spoke with your mother, but I just wanted to reach out to you, also, with my respect and admiration, and sympathies for your loss, but in celebration of what God has given you...the love of your awesome grandmother.
